Traveling To Acapulco Tips and Hints For First-Timers

Uncover The Beauty

Traveling To Acapulco: Tips and Hints for the First-Timers

Traveling to Acapulco can be one of the most exciting trips you can ever make. It can be a dream come true, especially for those who want something new and exciting pleasures to partake. Well, visiting Acapulco really is a trip to remember with all the wonderful things that Acapulco has to offer, including long stretches of white sand beaches, high rise hotels, fine dining at the city's popular restaurants, a vibrant nightlife, beautiful sunsets and breathtaking views of the Acapulco Bay, as well as the pulsating water sports and activities that draw locals and tourist alike close to them.

Located in the southwestern part of Mexico, Acapulco, for long years, has been considered throughout Mexico and the world as one of the perfect destinations to visit for an ultimate vacation. It is featured in some of the travel magazines and Hollywood movies as a haven for the rich and famous, but the truth is, Acapulco has everything for every traveler. And, although it is celebrated worldwide for its luxury, glamour and glitz, Acapulco is actually a place where everything that a traveler could hope for is available. Yes, just name it and Acapulco has it.

However, although it seems to be so easy to partake and enjoy all such life's pleasures in Acapulco, traveling to and entering Acapulco can be not as smooth as you may think. There are a lot of considerations to keep in mind, especially if you are a first timer. These important things may include the entry requirements, transportation, language, weather, currency, dress codes, emergency, as well as public safety and security, to mention but a few.

So if you are planning to visit Acapulco for your holiday getaway and you're a first timer, then it is best to obtain knowledge about those things first before you consider the trip. Just note everything that must be noted and keep in mind that Acapulco, just like the rest of the vacation destinations on earth, has its own rules and standards. Since you are new to it and you came from a foreign land, you should try to act and behave in accordance to what is set and maintained in the city. Knowing all these important things can help you achieve the best vacation experience, after all.

So let's start knowing the entry requirements, and proceed to the other important things to note before considering a vacation trip to Acapulco.

Entry Requirements

The government of Mexico has set certain requirements for those who wish to enter the country and enjoy everything that Acapulco and the other resort areas has to offer. For instance, the citizens of the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Argentina, Chile and nearly all Western European countries are not required to present visas to enter as tourists. However, this doesn't mean that they are exempted from the entry requirements. The truth is, people from those countries are required to present either of the following:

- Valid Passport – As maintained by the government of Mexico itself, a valid passport is one of the most convenient methods of proof of citizenship. Well, perhaps one main reason that a valid passport is highly recommended in entering Acapulco or Mexico is that it helps you to avoid delays and misunderstandings. Aside from that, a stolen or lost passport can easily be replaced when you are outside of the United States than other evidence of citizenship.

Or

- Valid and State Issued Photo ID along with a Birth Certificate
 - This requirement must be met in order to enter Mexico. However, when presenting your birth certificate, it must be an original copy from the state or municipality where you were born, and it must have a raised seal. It is important to note that hospital issued certificates with your footprints, as well as the photocopies of certificates without raised seal or notary are not accepted. This is also true with driver's licenses and permits, voter registration cards, affidavits and similar documents.

So the basic entry requirements are given. Perhaps the best way you can do to make all things smooth and easy is to contact the nearest consulate in your state or municipality so to determine exactly what documentation is needed for you to travel abroad and enter Mexico. This is very much important for those who are not citizens of the United States. Well, this is very important as failure to present such mentioned requirements will result to denial of boarding and forfeiture of your entire trip without a refund.

It is important to note that if you are not a citizen of the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Chile, Argentina or most of the Western European countries, you will be required to present a visa. Also, you will be issued a tourist card which is valid for 90 day but can be extended up to 180 days if you want. This tourist card can be obtained from the immigration officials at airports, piers or the border itself. And, the price for this card is usually included in your airfare.

Just a tip: To help you get through customs, always say that you are visiting for a vacation.

However, if in case you will be visiting Acapulco with children, note that the government of Mexico has also set certain entry requirements for minors. In fact, very strict regulations govern the international travel for minors or those who are below 18 years of age. So, if you plan to travel to Acapulco with a minor, note that in addition to the requirements mentioned above, you will need to show a notarized parental consent form signed by the legal guardians of the child. This is specifically true with minors who are traveling without their parents. Nevertheless, if one of the legal guardians is deceased or unreachable, a notarized document that supports that effect must be presented. For example, a notarized copy of a death certificate.

It is further necessary to understand that these entry requirements may change at any time without prior notice. Given this fact, it is then the sole responsibility of the traveler to become aware of the entry requirements changes. So contact the nearest consulate and ask for the requirements as you possibly can.

Transportation

In Acapulco, there is really no need for you to rent a car, unless you will be traveling with special plans in mind. Well, this is basically for the fact that Acapulco and its neighboring areas are easy to reach with the availability of the city's public transportation. A number of buses and taxis are in fact out there servicing the entire city of Acapulco, and it's nice to know that they are highly affordable for longer and shorter trips.

The buses in Acapulco are said to be the cheapest way to get around. The buses come along every ten minutes so there's no need for you to wait longer. However, getting off the bus can be a little confusing for the reason that stop buttons are usually located at different intervals on the side of the buses. Much confusing is that, once you press the stop button, the driver will let you off at the next available stop. Well, if you are not sure of the location, just shout "Alto!" and the bus will stop.

Taxis are also available in Acapulco. The government certified taxis have a license with a photo of the driver and a taxi number displayed. However, before entering into the taxi, agree on the price first. You may be surprised as to how big the tipping for the driver is. Also, never share a taxi with strangers and don't ever allow the driver to pick up additional passengers. This is just a caution for safety. Aside from that, don't be surprised when the taxi driver asks you what you want to pay. They use this tactic to get a sense of how street smart you are. If you don't know about the acceptable fare, ask someone you know or the front desk personnel at your hotel about it. But typically, the standard rate for the taxi in Acapulco is 20 or 30 to 40 pesos for longer trips across the town.

Weather

The weather in Acapulco is a bit predictable. Generally, the place is often visited by more rain during the late summer months of August and September. This kind of weather also corresponds with the hurricane season on the east and west coasts. But, from February through April, the daytime temperature typically ranges from mid to high 80s. The ocean breeze, however, makes the climate in Acapulco a bit enjoyable. Also, during the evenings, the weather is a bit cool, so you might need a light sweater or jacket on your visit.

Language

In Acapulco, Spanish is the official language. Majority of the people speaks that language. However, there are some who understand English. It is even spoken by many of those who are employed in the tourism industry. Aside from that, many people also understand and speak French, Italian and German. You can find these people usually from travel and tour companies and hotel concierges.

Currency

The official currency of Acapulco is the Mexican Peso. Well, the rate of exchange for this money against the US dollar fluctuates daily. So don't expect the rate exchange on your next visit to be similar to the rate you've known from your first visit. What is nice to know about the place is that a number of hotels in the city offer currency exchange services for the tourists. But, if you want to get the best rates, then go to the banks and exchange houses. The rates they offer are oftentimes pretty reasonable than those in hotels.

The US currency and the traveler's checks are also accepted throughout Acapulco. Most shops and restaurants accept all major credit cards, and if you want to check your accounts through your ATMs, ATM machines are available in Acapulco. You can even use your bank cards with Cirrus or Visa/Mastercard status, and to be sure with everything about your money, check with your bank before you leave. The banks in Acapulco are open generally from 9 in the morning to 2:30 in the afternoon during weekdays.

Note: The ATM machines in Acapulco will dispense Mexican Pesos, not US dollars.

Dress Codes

In terms of dress code, Acapulco has a decent style. The clubs throughout the city maintain strict dress codes. The guys are in fact required to wear shirts, dress shoes and long pants into the clubs. During the day, the Acapulco standards accept shorts, bathing suits, t-shirts and sandals.

Emergency

In case you are wondering about the emergency in Acapulco, just note that throughout the area, a special squad of police officers who speak English is available. They operate mainly to assist tourists, and these officers usually wear white and light blue uniforms. It is nice to know that they may be glad to help you in case of emergency.

Aside from the police squad, Acapulco gives you a line of doctors who know how to speak English. They are readily available in case you have a medical emergency. But if you want to find the best physician available who is expert in speaking English, you can ask for a recommendation at the information section of the hotel you are staying in.

Public Safety and Security

Just like the rest of the resort areas in Mexico, the concerns for safety and security in Acapulco have risen steadily over the past years. A number of foreign governments have in fact warned the travelers to Acapulco to be careful and watch out for the important security and safety matters involved. It is advised that travelers must be aware of their surroundings at all times. Women should not travel alone, or if they do, they must exercise caution, especially if they are traveling at night. Well, this is advised knowing Acapulco is not free from crimes. In fact, several rape and robbery cases were already filed in the courts and this is what makes the armed street crime a serious problem in Acapulco.

When using ATM machines in the area, be cautious. Again, be aware of your surroundings. If possible, access your ATM only during the business day at large facilities that are protected. There are some cases in Acapulco when tourists are accosted on the street and forced to withdraw money from their accounts through their ATM cards. So if this is a serious problem in the city, then beware.

With all those crimes occurring in Acapulco, it is then necessary for every tourist to take extra care when traveling. If possible, don't travel alone. Go with your friends or families.

Acapulco indeed is a place worthy to visit for a special vacation. It has all the bounties of nature, and most of the people are nice enough to entertain and accommodate you. But, just like the rest of the countries in the world, Acapulco is not free from crimes and all kinds of felonies. So, extra caution is still a necessity and this is very much important especially if you are a first timer.
